from last weekends defeat

The Dragons came into the tournament after giving a poor account of themselves in the recent Autumn Nations, leaving question marks over the future of Wayne Pivac as head coach.

But an opening weekend win in Dublin over the Irish followed by a thrilling 24-25 victory over Scotland in game week 2 now leaves the Welsh on the brink of a triumph few would have expected at the start of the year.

They now face an England side that managed to recover from their demoralizing opening Six Nations loss to Scotland with a 41-18 victory at Twickenham against strugglers Italy.

That match saw Eddie Jones' men register six tries, but they must now face a much more difficult opponent that has history in its sights.

It has been an enthralling opening to this year's Six Nations by the hosts, who endured a torrid 2021.

Despite a number of injuries, Wayne Pivac's men have beaten Ireland 21-16 and Scotland 25-24, though on both occasions they were helped by red cards, with Peter O'Mahony and Zander Fagerson each receiving their marching orders.

If you're intent on watching Wales vs England, but find yourself away from home then you'll run into problems when trying to stream your domestic coverage online from abroad as it's likely to be geo-blocked. That's where a VPN (Virtual Private Network) can be a lifesaver. They allow you to virtually change the ISP of your laptop, tablet or mobile to one that's back in your home country, letting you watch as if you were back there.

Wales host England in an eagerly-awaited Six Nations showdown in Cardiff on Saturday afternoon. Eddie Jones' side have made a somewhat sluggish start to the defence of their first Six Nations title since 2017, with a first home Calcutta Cup defeat by Scotland since 1983 followed by a fairly routine win over perennial strugglers Italy at Twickenham.

England now face a massive test after the first rest weekend, with Wales gunning to complete a Triple Crown and keep their bid for a second Grand Slam in three years alive while dealing a crushing blow to their fierce rivals in the process.

Wales meanwhile still harbour hopes of an unlikely grand slam following narrow wins in their opening two matches.

The Dragons edged out Ireland and Scotland after both their opponents were reduced to 14 men.

What time does Wales vs England kick off?

Wales vs England takes place on Saturday, February 27.

The match kicks off at 4.45pm UK time.

It will be held at the Principality Stadium in Cardiff, though sadly without the famously raucous Welsh crowd

Last time these sides met was in November with England running out 24-13 winners in the Autumn Nations Cup in Llanelli

Wales vs England team news

George North will win his 100th cap for Wales as part of a vastly experienced partnership in the centres alongside the fit-again Jonathan Davies.

Liam Williams shifts to full-back with Leigh Halfpenny missing out, while Scarlets scrum-half Kieran Hardy makes just his third senior international appearance in place of the injured Tomos Williams.

In the pack, Josh Navidi is fit to feature at blindside flanker, so Aaron Wainwright makes way.

England have made two changes to the side that beat Italy 41-18, with Jamie George returning at hooker and Luke Cowan-Dickie back on the bench.
