WORCESTER — Firefighters responded to a call around 3 a.m. at 6 Eames Road Sunday.

A second alarm was called to bring in additional personnel after the crew experienced difficulties with the layout of the building and heavy smoke.

The fire broke out in the mezzanine of a commercial building, which is currently occupied by a garage door company.

The building, which is made up of office and garage space, was damaged by the fire in a loft area and the ceiling above it, Acting Deputy Chief Adam Roche said.

Roche said that there were no firefighter or civilian injuries reported.

The cause of the fire is under investigation, he said.

"Firefighters had a very long day in Worcester yesterday and active weekend," Roche said. "All crews did a great job."

The Fire Department had responded to eight alarms in 24 hours, Roche said Sunday afternoon.
