

CULTURE FIX

THIS MONTH USHERS IN UNMISSABLE RETURNS, FROM A LEGENDARY PERFORMANCE ARTIST TO A POP PRINCESS, SAYS BRYONY GOOCH

Clockwise from top left: Maggie O'Farrell's Hamnet hits London's West End; Jennifer Aniston returns in The Morning Show; Kylie's back with new album Tension; Marina Abramović, The Current, 2017. Video 1 hour 35 minutes

ART

Marina Abramović

The performance art icon celebrates an illustrious 50-year career by bringing her most famous sculptures, videos and installations to the Royal Academy of Arts and restaging some of her signature work with artists trained in the Marina Abramović method. With different performances taking place each time, no two visits will be the same. From 23rd September to 1st January 2024; royalacademy.org.uk

MUSIC

Tension
by Kylie Minogue

A self-described blend of 'personal reflection, club abandon and melancholic high', Minogue's 16th studio album and follow-up to 2020's Disco is a vibrant collection of electro pop anthems, including summer dancefloor filler Padam Padam. The Aussie princess of pop is back. Out 22nd September

Hamnet

Having already won over theatregoers during its sold-out run at Stratford's Swan Theatre, Maggie O'Farrell's poignant tale of parental grief gets its long-awaited West End outing at the Garrick Theatre, adapted by eminent playwright Lolita Chakrabarti and starring Madeleine Mantock as Agnes Hathaway. From 30th September to 6th January; rsc.org.uk

TV

The Morning Show
Season 3

After last season's reckoning with Covid, The Morning Show returns for a 'more sensual' round three with a new showrunner and additional cast, including Jon Hamm as Paul Marks, a tech titan who shows an interest in the network and potentially puts it at risk, and Tig Notaro as his chief of staff. Coming to Apple TV+ 13th September
