

This story is part of INDYSTAR CHEAT SHEET Cheat Sheet: 'SYTYCD,' 'AGT' results, Brantly to speak on release Cheat Sheet: Beheaded journalist, Ferguson, 'AGT' Cheat Sheet: Taylor Swift, RIP Don Pardo, Ferguson updates

1248

 4

Cheat Sheet: We're No. 1 in basketball players, 'Sam & Cat' done

Cori Faklaris, cori.faklaris@indystar.com 7:02 p.m. EDT July 14, 2014

Weather and news updates for Monday, July 14, 2014.

(Photo: Robert Scheer/The Star)

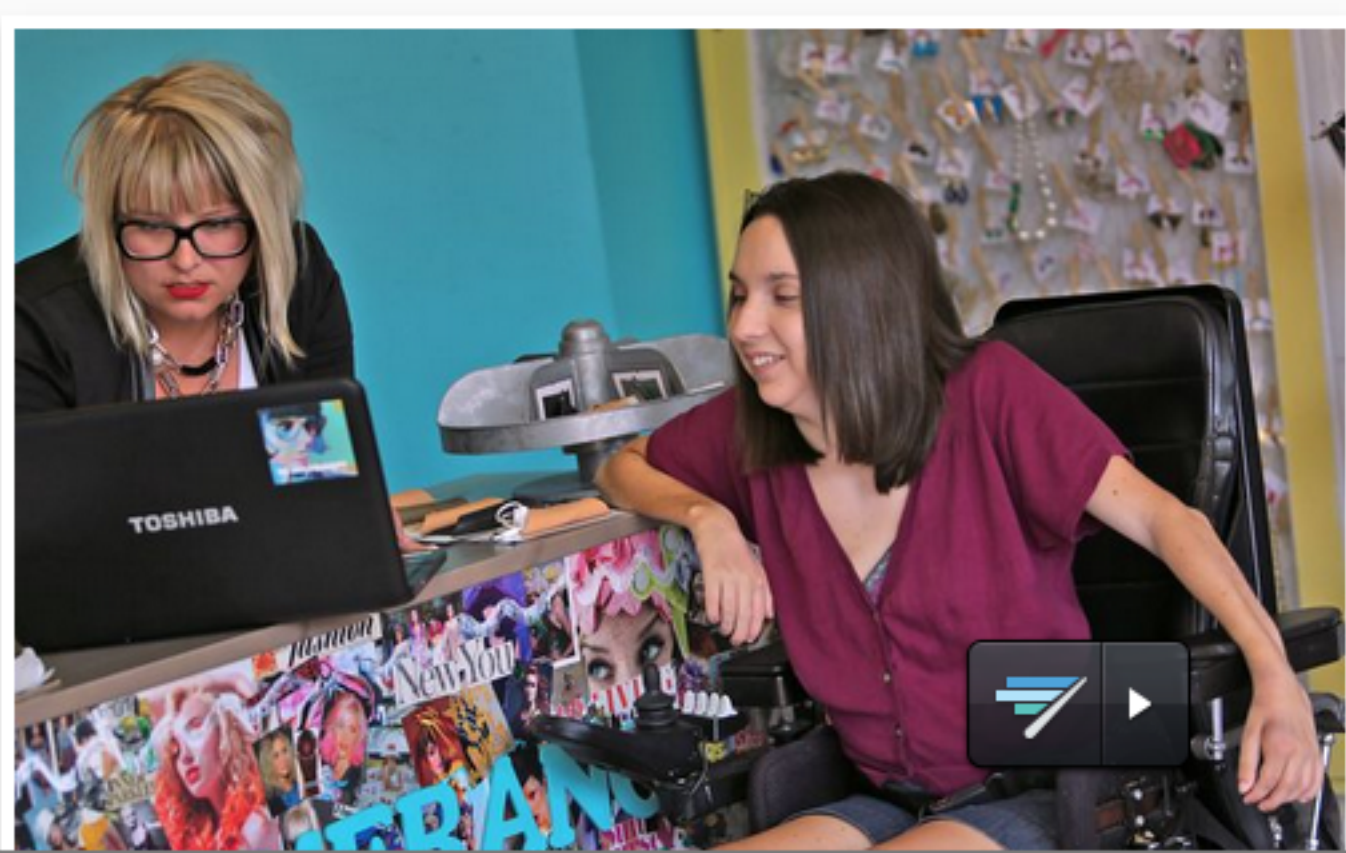

1248 CONNECT TWEET 4 LINKEDIN COMMENT EMAIL MORE

The polar vortex, the chief villain of our brutal winter, is ready to make it up to the U.S. Temperatures will be 10 to 30 degrees below average this week, mainly around the upper Midwest and Great Lakes, as the weather pattern dips lower in latitude once again. Since this is traditionally one of our year's hottest weeks, it means it could turn into one of 2014's most pleasant.

-- For today, our high will still be in the low 80s, with showers and storms mostly south of I-70, says Paul Poteet. Check his forecast at IndyStar.com for a look ahead at this week's temperature ranges for central Indiana.

Top headlines for Monday, July 14, 2014:

1. Emily Hunt was 4 years old in August 1996 when she was paralyzed from the chest down and her grandmother, Nancy Jones, killed in a kiddie train accident at the former Old Indiana Fun Park near Thorntown. Now, Hunt -- who graduated in 2011 from Brownsburg High School -- is a summer intern at the Bloomerang boutique on Mass Ave and nursing an interest in fashion. "I can't wait to apply all the stuff I'm learning when I have my own boutique."

Injured?
See the docs the pros trust.

ORTHOINDY
Bone, Joint, Spine & Muscle Care

OrthoIndy is the official orthopaedic provider for the Indiana Pacers.

No referral needed. Click here to request an appointment online.

INDYSTAR CHEAT SHEET

Cheat Sheet: 'SYTYCD,' 'AGT' results, Brantly to speak on release
Cori Faklaris

Cheat Sheet: Beheaded