

MedX Med Spa Now Offering Complimentary Online Consultations

Plantation, Florida- 6th August, 2019: MedX Med Spa, an acclaimed anti-aging clinic located in Plantation, Florida, is now extending free consultation services online as an attempt to reach out to their potential clients in a more accessible and affordable manner. These digital and phone consultations would allow concerned individuals to gain necessary information about their bodies and learn how they can go about finding specialized solutions for their concerns. Seeing how there tends to be a fair deal of stigma in recognizing and then subsequently managing issues related to sexual health, weight maintenance and aging symptoms, the clinic is making a collective effort in assisting clients in getting in touch with their bodies and minds, whether it is through medical procedures or targeted healthy plans.

The company is offering its potential clients to seek them out on various social media channels in addition to scheduling appointments online and via phone. The free consultation service would allow customers to stay anonymous and secure as they are attaining significant information about their bodies and being guided through all the available options. Some of the services provided by the company include bioidentical hormone therapy, sermorelin and testosterone therapy, thyroid management, erectile dysfunction medication and weight loss management and training. The trained healthcare professionals of Medx Med Spa work on building a personal connection with their potential clients so that they are able to make informed, healthy and successful decisions for their bodies. These health initiatives, most of which prioritize Primary Care for the patient, are meant to raise awareness among the clients but also equip the clients with the steps they can possibly take to improve their physical and sexual health. A complimentary consultation also benefits potential clients who are not quite sure what their options are regarding their dysfunction.

The Chief Executive Officer of MedX Med Spa has continually asserted why he believes that their company lets concerned individuals take charge of their bodies. "We want our clients, first and foremost, to feel comfortable expressing their worries. Our doctors and professionals want to get to know them and their challenges to propose the most appropriate, convenient and accessible solutions. There are a lot of possible options but in order to make the best decision for oneself, it is essential that our clients feel like they can trust us and our advice" their CEO assures their clients that their company is looking out for their best. "We want to gain their trust but also share important information with them that will really help them in the future,"
